

Preparing Your Child

- Read, read, and then read some more! The more books your child is exposed to the better.
- After you read together, ask the child different questions about the characters, setting, or plot. Comprehension is a key component in learning to read.
- Whenever you read a new book together for the first time, ask your child to predict what they think will happen next.

Developing lifelong learners

Always discovering,
Always learning

- Letters are all around us. Point out different letters everywhere you go—signs, cereal boxes, mail etc.
- Play “Go Fish” using alphabet cards. This is a great way to practice identifying letters.
- Practice writing the names of other family members. Tracing, copying, or even creating the letters from objects are great ways to do this.
- Count, count, and then count some more!
- Practice printing and copying different numbers. Get creative!
- Point out their name and write it for them, label their things so that their name is familiar.

Also, remember that children learn through play. Provide as many opportunities as possible for creative play. Talk to them about what they are playing. Role play and foster imagination!
